

Department of Economics

Fall 2017 Graduate Student Tutors

In order to facilitate students' search for extra help, below is a list of economics graduate students who have expressed interest in tutoring. Please note that the Department does not run a formal tutoring service. Any arrangement you make with the individuals listed below is a private arrangement. As such, the Department does not guarantee any of the services provided by them. Furthermore, you should agree in advance the details of the tutoring (amount of remuneration, etc.). In the past, tutors have generally charged $25 to $50 per hour for their services and charged more the closer to the end of the semester. If you are interested in free tutoring by undergraduate students, please visit Economics Tutoring Center (ETC) in Uris Hall, Room 475.
